

BENEFIT FOR LAUREN CUMMINS

Lauren is an 11-year old girl who was diagnosed at an early age with Neurofibromatosis (NF). NF is a disease that can affect the cells of the skin, brain and optic nerves. As a result of this disorder, Lauren became blind in one eye by age 2 and began losing vision in the other eye by age 8. By age 10, the tumor expanded beyond the optic nerves causing her major complications.

Lauren was admitted to NYU Hospital on November 10, 2009 for brain surgery. Since then, she's endured 9 additional surgical procedures and a second major brain tumor resection. She now requires radiation therapy and is expected to require hospitalization for at least another 8 weeks.
